

Mission

The mission of the Nancy A. McDonough Geschke Library at Marygrove College is to be a partner in the educational process, sharing especially in the College's mission of educating each student toward intellectual and professional competence and toward career flexibility through grounding in the liberal arts. The library, in an environment conducive to research and learning, provides access to resources and services that serve primarily the educational and information needs of the students, faculty, and staff of the college.

Vision

As the center of the intellectual community for Marygrove College, the Nancy A. McDonough Geschke Library commits to:

- Maintain a comfortable and welcoming physical space conducive to individual work, academic collaboration, and social interaction among all members of the college community.
- Cultivate a supportive learning environment that respects and values the diversity of ideas and perspectives.
- Promote research and discourse by selecting, acquiring, organizing, and making scholarly resources accessible to both on-campus and distance learners.
- Provide expertise in information literacy and the ethical use of information across the curriculum for academic development as well as personal and professional growth.
- Support the academic technology needs of the college community.
- Engage the campus community and build lasting, beneficial relationships through our diverse collections, services, and staff.
- Offer both personalized and collaborative teaching and learning opportunities that empower students to achieve their educational goals and actively contribute to their local community and the global workforce.
